

THE TASTING PANEL

MAISON SALEYA

Rosé 2024

91 Points

This would be competitive at $18, but at $13 it seems like a steal. Not quite as pale in color as many rosé wines from the region, it also offers just a touch of fruity sweetness but remains classy and restrained by global standards for the category. This finishes clean and dry despite showing some ripe fruit notes in the mid-palate, which is a winning combination.

Michael Franz - November 18, 2025

