AMERICA

In the span of a generation, America has witnessed a wine revolution. From 440 American wineries in 1970, the number has climbed to over 11,000 and America has become the world's 4th largest wine-producing country. Today, American wines are sought after across the globe, some enjoying the same esteem as Europe's age-old icons. California leads production with Cabernet Sauvignon and Chardonnay remaining the most widely planted grapes; Pinot Noir, Merlot, Syrah, Sauvignon Blanc and Zinfandel have also proven very successful. Washington and Oregon, combined, produce only a small percentage of American wine, yet their contributions in quality and prestige are profound. Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Chardonnay and Riesling predominate in Washington. In Oregon, the Pinot Noir grape reigns supreme.

NAPA VALLEY

California's famous wine region is at the vanguard of modern winemaking. Among the world's great wine regions, Napa Valley's global recognition has helped its wine industry's steady growth since the 1970s. With countless vines sited on the valley floor, on benchlands at the foot of mountain slopes and on steep hillsides in tiny vineyards, Napa Valley holds exceptional terroir. Some of the New World's oldest and newest vineyards are nestled among the town halls and schools of Napa's contiguous rural villages, all producing fruit for some of the most sought-after wines available. Single varietal wines and blends made from Bordeaux varieties are crafted from Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Chardonnay and Sauvignon Blanc, to name a few, into fine wines that express many of this region's various, distinct vineyards and microclimates.

Led by Chef Brian Streeter, a 30+ year employee, the culinary program is dedicated solely to developing and executing educational programs ranging from wine-and-food pairing seminars and blending sessions to hands-on cooking classes.

Dolores Cakebread, a certified master gardener, planted the winery's 3/4 acre vegetable garden early in the winery's history, which now features 40 beds of seasonal produce and supplies the fresh ingredients used in the winery's kitchen.

Sequoia Grove

ORIGIN: Napa Valley, California

Named for the grove of giant Sequoia trees that stand above the winery, Sequoia Grove produces hand-crafted, balanced and elegant wines in the heart of Napa Valley's Rutherford AVA. Central to the winemaking philosophy is an unwavering commitment to the quality of the vineyards and minimal manipulation of the fruit. The result are wines that delight the palate upon release and reward the patience of cellaring.

- Located on the Napa Valley's famed Rutherford Bench, where extraordinary soil composition yields some of the finest Cabernet Sauvignon in the world
- Small lots of Chardonnay and Cabernet Sauvignon, produced from iconic Rutherford estate vineyards and long-standing grower partnerships, are crafted by the winemaking team.
- Named for the grove of towering, endangered Sequoia trees that stand over the winery
- In 2018, Sequoia Grove opened a new, state-of-the-art winemaking facility and a completely renovated and expanded visitor center. The new winemaking facility further enhances the already exceptional quality of Sequoia Grove's wines.

SONOMA COUNTY

In tranquil, pastoral Sonoma Valley, great wine growers work with little fanfare. With plantings older than Napa Valley, Sonoma County has quietly produced incredible wines from Cabernet Sauvignon, Chardonnay and, notably, Zinfandel. Sonoma's geographic and climatic diversity results in varied terroirs, from the hot hilltops of the Mayacamas Mountains down through warm foothills, to valleys that extend west, ending at coastal plateau vineyards cooled by the nearby Pacific Ocean. Sonoma's long tradition of quality winegrowing and winemaking has placed it with California's finest wine regions.

Rebellious Wine Cellars

ORIGIN: California

Rebellious pays homage to the winemaker's art of blending, with each varietal thoughtfully chosen for a final, generous, and balanced blend. The fruit is fermented in separate lots, allowing each to be distinctly crafted before aging and blending.

Pinot Noir is an ancient varietal that has shown resilience in the cool climate vineyards of France for thousands of years. After being smuggled into California in the 1900s, it continues its fight to survive on hillsides and high elevations. Rebellious is named after the roots of these grapevines, which struggle down into the earth, seeking water and fighting against the harsh elements to survive. Today, the growers and winemakers of Rebellious have created luscious, full-bodied California Pinot Noir. In addition, they have added a splash of classic California Chardonnay to soften the tannins, add more flavor and acidity.

- Grapes from Sonoma and Mendocino
- Fermented in separate lots
- Aged 16 months in French and American oak

NOTEWORTHY:

Renowned for its hospitality, Domaine Carneros is one of the most-visited wineries in the US, receiving 200,000 visitors annually and over two million since opening.

As a trial in 1992, founding winemaker Eileen Crane made a few barrels of Pinot Noir for employees and Claude Taittinger fell in love with the results. Domaine Carneros Pinot Noir was born.

Foley Estates Vineyard & Winery

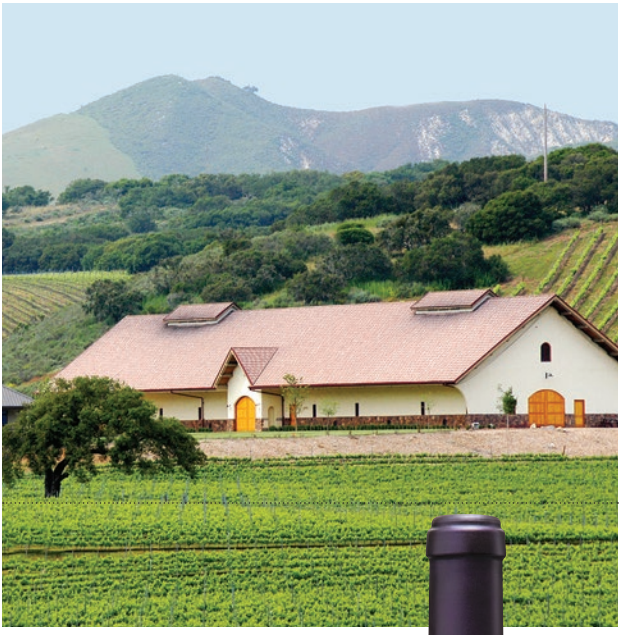

ORIGIN: Sta. Rita Hills, California

Foley Estates is one of California's preeminent producers of Pinot Noir and Chardonnay from the cool-climate Sta. Rita Hills AVA. The east-west topography allows cold Pacific Ocean breezes to enter the valley, creating a Burgundian climate well-suited for producing world-class Pinot Noir and Chardonnay.

- Singular focus on small lot, cool-climate Pinot Noir and Chardonnay
- Outstanding terroir composed of steep, south-facing hillsides and limestone soils, optimal elevation for sun exposure and an evening marine fog layer that cools the vines and results in a longer ripening period
- Precision farming and winemaking: micro-blocks harvested and vinified separately to define the highest estate expression and quality

Mullan Road Cellars

ORIGIN: Columbia Valley, Washington

Intrigued by the quality of wines coming out of Washington state, Dennis Cakebread launched an exploration of the Columbia Valley in 2010, focused on producing exciting, world-class red wines. The result, Mullan Road Cellars, celebrates the pioneering spirit of those who made the original journey into the Northwest Territory.

- Small-production, age worthy Cabernet Sauvignon
- Fruit comes from three prime sites: the famed Seven Hills Vineyard in Walla Walla Valley, Stillwater Creek Vineyard on the Royal Slope of the Frenchman Hills, and Lawrence Vineyards in the Frenchman Hills
- Winemaker Aryn Morell, a Washington native, has extensive experience in the Columbia Valley as well as exposure to top Napa wineries Silver Oak, Joseph Phelps, Chimney Rock and Stag's Leap Winery.

NOTEWORTHY:

Dennis Cakebread named Mullan Road Cellars after the road which stretches from Fort Benton, Montana to Fort Walla Walla in Washington, a 600-mile road, built in the 1800s. Stretches of modern-day Interstates 15 and 90 overlap the original Mullan Road across what are now Montana, Idaho and Washington.

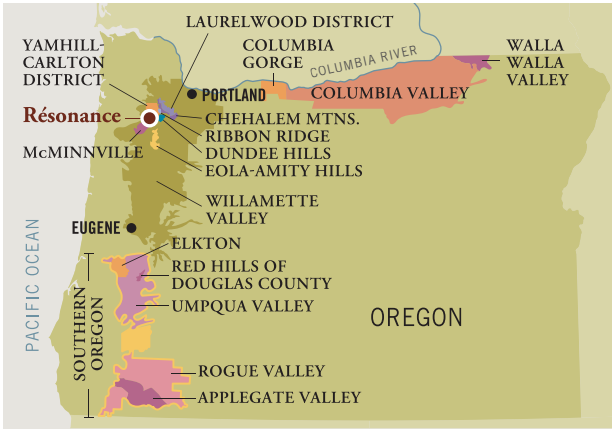

Mullan Road is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and has been designated a historic civil engineering landmark by the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Résonance

ORIGIN: Willamette Valley, Oregon

Résonance is Maison Louis Jadot's first venture outside of Burgundy since their inception in 1859. Inspired by it's terroir, wines and people, Jadot recognized in the Willamette Valley those unique characteristics that give rise to truly great wines. The purchase of Résonance Vineyard in 2013 marked the beginning of an exciting new chapter, both for Jadot and for Pinot Noir from Oregon.

- Small-production; age worthy and old world styled Pinot Noir and Chardonnay
- Fruit sourced from two estate vineyards, Résonance in the Yamhill-Carlton AVA and Découverte in the Dundee Hills AVA, along with top vineyards throughout the Willamette Valley
- Résonance Vineyard vines are non-grafted original rootstock and grown in some of the oldest Sedimentary and Basaltic soils in the Willamette Valley
- Estate Vineyards are organically dry-farmed

FRANCE

Our entire concept of fine wine was born in France. Its systems of classification for quality and identity have defined the global standard for wine and disseminated a message of pedigree that has established some of France's best-known wines as benchmarks of their types. In France's northernmost wine district, Champagne is the standard against which the world's sparkling wines are measured. Great Burgundies have helped Pinot Noir and Chardonnay take their place at the top of the wine world's vine hierarchies. In Beaujolais, Gamay produces wines for aging and ready-to-enjoy wines with equal facility. Rhône's Grenache and Syrah and Loire's Sauvignon Blanc, Chenin Blanc and Cabernet Franc make a broad range of wines. And Alsace is home to world class Riesling, Pinot Gris, Gewürztraminer and other whites. As with gastronomy, in the world of wine, France's regional identities are stories rich in diversity, variety and supreme quality.

BURGUNDY

Since the second century, few wine regions have attained the stature of Burgundy, which is composed of the subregions: Côte d'Or, Côte Chalonnaise, Mâconnais, Beaujolais and outlying Chablis, 65 miles northwest of the Côte d'Or. Burgundy's terroir forms the basis of its complex classification system, where vineyards are separated into appellations from the broadest to the most specific designation, which names the wine. In ascending order, District, e.g. Bourgogne, is the name of the wine's region; Villages, e.g. Chambolle-Musigny AC, contains the name of the wine's village; Premier Cru names the wine's vineyard within a village, e.g. Chambolle-Musigny 1er Cru Les Amoureuses; and atop the hierarchy, Grand Cru contains only the name of the wine's vineyard, e.g. Le Musigny Grand Cru.

Château des Jacques

ORIGIN: Beaujolais

Located in the Moulin-à-Vent appellation and owned since 1996 by Louis Jadot, Château des Jacques is widely recognized as the most prestigious estate in Beaujolais. It produces world-class wines from 196 acres in the Moulin-à-Vent and Morgon crus.

- Historic 19th century Château above an ancient cellar, now restored and updated for the 21st Century
- Uses Burgundian winemaking methods to create complex wines capable of long aging
- Sustainably farmed; many vineyards farmed biodynamically
- Long macerations take one month, compared to the region's typical 10-12 days. Wild yeast fermentations take longer and oak barrel aging lends complexity

AIX

ORIGIN: Provence

AIX is from the renowned appellation 'AOP Coteaux d'Aix en Provence', northeast of Aix-en-Provence in the south of France. It is one of the largest domaines in the AOP Coteaux d'Aix-en-Provence area, the quintessential location for rosé wine. The estate is situated on a plateau nestled in the rolling Provence hills at an altitude of 1,400 feet above sea level. It enjoys 300+ days of sunshine, and includes over 185 acres of vineyards planted on mineral-rich soils with Grenache, Syrah and Cinsault. This terroir, highlighted by warm days, cool nights, and mistral winds, creates a fragrant and well-balanced wine.

- The winery, Maison Saint Aix, focuses solely on rosé and has been purpose built to make the best rosé in the world
- Offered in multiple sizes, AIX is made to be shared – 750 mL, 1.5L, 3L, 6L and 15L

Maison Saleya

ORIGIN: Provence

Saleya is the name of the flower market in the French city of Nice, in the heart of Provence. The grapes for Maison Saleya Rosé are grown just west of the iconic symbol of Provence, the Sainte Victoire mountain. The area's mountainous topography protects the grapes from the Mistral winds. From the best selection of plots amid the garrigue, these vineyards are known for their consistent good maturity and low yields. The proximity of the sea, 300 days of sunshine per year, and the granitic-schist soil give this wine its great character.

- Grapes are sorted and destemmed, with cold maceration of up to one full day followed by fermentation over 7 days at 17°C (62°F) to preserve fruity aromas
- The final blend is produced by the traditional Provence method, vinifying each grape variety separately, then blending them together for ideal balance and character
- Maison Saleya Provence Rosé is the essence of summer in a bottle
- A classic dry Provence Rosé blending Grenache and Cinsault
- Available in sizes: 750ml and 19.5L kegs

ITALY

Since antiquity, Italy has been praised for its remarkable range of indigenous grapes and winemaking styles. The Greeks were so impressed with the wines they found in Italy, they named it "Oenotria" (EH-NOH-TREE-AH), the land of wine. In Central Italy, Tuscany produces Brunello di Montalcino and Chianti, including some of the world's most collectible labels and blends of International varieties. Northern Italy produces refined and exquisite Barolo and Barbaresco in Piedmont, world-class Pinot Grigio and Sauvignon Blanc in Friuli-Venezia Giulia and crisp whites in Trentino-Alto Adige. To the south, Campania, Sicily and Sardinia are leading a renaissance making robust, earthy wines with remarkable aging potential. No other country in the world produces as many different wines as Italy.

TUSCANY

With its rich history, countless illustrious wineries and wealth of superb appellations, Tuscany ranks among the world's top wine regions. Gently rolling hills are populated by medieval villages and castles; ancient stone walls separate terraced vineyards. While firmly rooted in tradition, Tuscany is home to a generation of winegrowers bent on challenging the status quo. They seek to express Tuscany's matchless terroir with not only its native Sangiovese in wines like Chianti and Brunello di Montalcino, but also through unconventional blends of Cabernet Sauvignon, Cabernet Franc and Merlot along with Sangiovese. Such innovations have launched a quality revolution throughout Italy. At the forefront, Tuscan winemakers are creating unforgettable wines of distinction and character.

Tenuta San Guido's first vintages received little attention. From 1948-1960, the wine was either consumed by the family or left in the cellar. In the early 1960s, the older bottles were so well received that, in 1965, Mario Incisa planted a second Cabernet Sauvignon vineyard. Situated 650 feet lower than Castiglioncello, this gravelly 30-acre parcel was named Sassicaia, the place of many stones.

ARGENTINA

In recent years, Argentina has emerged as one of the world's top wine producing nations. Argentina's three prominent wine growing areas are Mendoza, Salta and Río Negro in Patagonia. High-altitude vineyards, dry and nearly disease-free climate conditions and an irrigation system that re-directs melt water from the Andes Mountains make Argentina a high quality wine growing location. In the past 300 years, European immigrants have introduced a range of grape varieties. Malbec has become Argentina's signature red wine grape and native Torrontés has quickly earned a reputation as the premier white wine variety. Pinot Noir and Cabernet Sauvignon are also used to craft superb red wines from Río Negro and Mendoza, respectively.

CHILE

Chile's unique combination of geography and climate provide consistently ideal conditions for winegrowing. Bordering the Atacama Desert to the north, the Andes Mountains to the east, the Patagonian ice fields to the south and the Pacific Ocean to the west, Chile's vines grow on a veritable viticultural island. These geographic factors provide healthy conditions, protecting vineyards against disease and pests like phylloxera. Chile's diverse geography also greatly impacts its climate; ocean breezes carried by the cold Humboldt current and cool air descending from the Andes Mountains temper the hot sun, resulting in a climate similar to the Mediterranean. Over twenty grape varieties are grown in Chile.

SPAIN

Spain has more land under vine than any country in the world: almost 3 million acres. Exploding in popularity, Spain has continued gaining greater share of US and global export markets and is now the world's third largest exporter. Spain's 69 DO (Denominación de Origen) regions offer a wide array of wines, made from traditional (Tempranillo, Albariño, Xarel-lo, Macabeo, Parellada) and international grape varieties. Rías Baixas and Catalonia produce many of the most vibrant wines from Spain. Europe's third most mountainous country, Spain has many elevated, cool climate vineyards, critical to help balance the robust ripeness from strong sunlight. Soil types are ideal for wine growing: various blends of calcareous (limestone), clay, sand and alluvial, depending on the region. Spain's finest winemakers are combining the best traditional and cutting-edge methods in viticulture and winemaking to produce outstanding wines.

TAYLOR'S

PORTUGAL

In northeast Portugal, the Douro Valley's revered Ports have a rich history that extends back for centuries. Fonseca, Taylor Fladgate and Croft trace their lineage back to 1815, 1692 and 1588, respectively. The Douro Valley contains over 40,000 hectares of steep, terraced vineyards, each rated on a quality scale from A-F according to altitude, aspect to the sun, varieties, soil, vine age and other criteria. The Marão and Montemuro Mountains protect the region from the Atlantic's humid west winds. The climate's cold winters and hot, dry summers along with the stony and schistous soil provide excellent conditions for wine growing. Though Port relies upon six main grape varieties (Touriga Nacional, Touriga Francesa, Tinto Cão, Tinta Roriz, Tinta Barroca and Tinta Amarela), over thirty varieties are authorized. The traditional winemaking practice of foot treading is still used to craft the finest Ports.

SAKE

Founded in 2005, the Joto Sake portfolio has been carefully developed to offer a wide range of sakes while maintaining a high level of focus. “Joto” means “highest quality” and this has been the guiding principle in everything Joto does. In 2016, Kobrand acquired Joto Sake because of Joto’s commitment to quality of product, relationships, distribution, and marketing. Today, the Joto Sake division of Kobrand imports from ten sake breweries. Located in different regions of Japan, when added up, these producers represent 73 generations and 1,971 years of family, sake-making history. Even though the portfolio is highly selective, it covers a wide range of sake types, styles, flavors, price points, and consumer accessibility.

Sake Is Simple

The three grades of premium sake are determined by how much the rice is milled or "polished." More polishing makes the sake lighter, cleaner and fruitier.

JUNMAI FAMILY	HONJOZO FAMILY
Made from four ingredients: rice, water, yeast and koji.	Made with a fifth ingredient: neutral distilled spirit.

Rice must be polished down to 50% or less of the grain

Rice must be polished down to 60% or less of the grain

Consumer palates have progressively grown more sophisticated, seeking out distinctive spirit brands that demonstrate originality, authenticity and quality. Imaginative mixologists and bar chefs have accelerated this evolution with their inspired cocktail creativity.

The Kobrand luxury portfolio of spirits represents some of the world's best and most respected brands, each holding a special place at home or in restaurants, bars and clubs. The Alizé brand pioneered a new and dynamic industry category, Exotic Liqueurs. The Lucano line of quality liqueurs, including world renowned Amaro Lucano, had its beginnings in the town of Pisticci, Italy in 1894.

The spirits portfolio also offers a treasured collection of specialty craft spirits. Timeless benchmarks such as Larressingle Armagnac and L'Héritier-Guyot Crème de Cassis exemplify true craftsmanship and rich history.
